

Cable Television and Dish TV are permitted to air certain programs that would not be permitted on commercial TV. Why? Because consumers PAY for that service. We PAY for XM radio and should be able to receive the programming that we desire as well (to include weather and traffic). And besides, if the public airways were offering what we wanted to listen to, we wouldn't be paying for what is free and there wouldn't be any argument. So why reward poor service and discourage competition, it's un-American.
